Follow these steps to save files into your repository using SourceTree:

- 1. Save your file in your local repository, i.e. the directory that you had your repository cloned to on your computer.
- 2. Notice how that file will be in the "unstaged files" section.

- 4. Write a commit message and make sure that the "push changes immediately to origin/master" is checked. Click on commit and you've just added a new file to your repository.
- 5. After you commit you will notice that the pending files is blank:
